Copyright Transfer Contract

Article Title:

All Authors:

Publication: Journal of Otolaryngology and Ophthalmology of Shandong University

The authors agree to transfer the assignable copyright of the article and the attached abstract, figures and tables only to Shandong University, the sponsor of Journal of Otolaryngology and Ophthalmology of Shandong University, who shall have, but not limited to, the following rights: reproduction, distribution, online dissemination, translation, adaptation, compilation, broadcast and exhibition. The rights are exercised by the editorial office of the journal on behalf of Shandong University. The right will be used in ways including but not limited to:

1. Publish, reproduce, distribute, exhibit, transmit, compile and store the paper in various known or future forms, formats or media (including but not limited to paper, digital and electronic);
2. Translate, adapt, abstract or make extract from the article, or do some derivative works for article. The abstracts, foreign language versions and other derivative works are also applicable to term 1;
3. Transfer or license all or part of the above rights to a third party.

The content of the journal is open access under the Creative Commons License. Permitted third party reuse of the articles published by the journal is defined by the following user license: Creative Commons Attribution-NonCommercial-NoDerivatives (CC BY-NC-ND). This license allows reusers to distribute, remix, adapt, and build upon the material in any medium or format for noncommercial purposes only and further does not permit distribution of the article if it is changed or edited in any way, and the reusers should always give appropriate credit to the authors in the process. The full details of the license are available at

<https://creativecommons.org/licenses/by-nc-nd/4.0/>

The term of copyright transfer is the legal protection period prescribed by law, and the regional scope is all over the world. After publishing, the editorial office will pay a one-off remuneration to the authors (this includes the remuneration for publishing and disseminating the article in other ways) and gift a sample journal to authors. This contract shall come into force automatically when the article is accepted for publishing. Once the article is rejected, this contract shall be invalidated and all rights shall return to the author.

The author should guarantee that the article is original and does not infringe the copyright or other rights of others, and the figures, tables and other materials have been properly cited or approved. The authors should guarantee that the article has never been published before and that the whole or main part of the article content has not been released. The authors guarantee that they will not transfer or license the copyright to a third party.

After publishing, the editorial office will allow the authors to exercise the following non-exclusive rights:

1. Include the whole or part of the article in the author's monograph or dissertation as appropriate credit is given to the journal.
2. Use the article for teaching (including slides) or distribute the article for non-commercial purpose;
3. Upload the article on authors' personal website or blog, as appropriate credit is given to the journal or a link to the electronic version of the article on the journal's website is provided.
4. Re-use the figures or tables from the article, as appropriate credit is given to the journal.
5. Spread or make use of the article under the license of CC BY-NC-ND 4.0.

For disputes in the execution of this contract, all authors and the editorial office agree that the original jurisdiction shall be attributed to the court of the city where the editorial office is located.

Please sign this contract and post it to the editorial office, or scan it and send it back by E-mail. Please keep a copy by yourself.
